A college education provides a person with a variety of things. The function of our college is primarily to develop teachers for high schools, grade schools, and rural schools of North Dakota.

Additional objectives are to train people for work in industry, agriculture, and business, and to provide preliminary training for other professions.

Our college also aims to give the student not only a command of functional skills and principles, but also a workable philosophy of life. It aims to help the student develop a culture and personality which will be assets to him throughout life and will instill in him a realization of his inescapable relationship to society, to his country, and to the world.

The opportunity is here for those who will devote themselves to the task of learning. Those who take advantage of the opportunity find that their college days pass rapidly by and the years all too quickly slip into the world of memories. The 1960-61 Snitcher strives to preserve the students memories of their work and play during the year at N.I.

A face that has become familiar on campus is that of Dr. Dugan, who is completing his second year as president of our college. Within two years, he has developed a rigorous program for upgrading our college with plans for further building improvements, increases in administrative personnel, and changes in curriculum. His interest in the school, the administration, and student body is evident at all times.

Mr. Banks (1920's)

Dedication

Mr. O. A. Banks was born in Holden, Massachusetts and grew up on a small farm near there. He attended grade school at Oakham and high school at Barre, Massachusetts, both small towns near Holden. Many of his summers were spent with his grandparents in Nova Scotia.

Graduating from high school shortly before the beginning of World War I, Mr. Banks was forced to seek a drier climate because of his health. He moved to Ellendale where he resided with his uncle, B. S. Hodges, one of Dickey County's first commissioners.

Although the automobile was becoming quite popular, not everybody had one. Mr. Banks recalls that he made his first trip to Oakes in his uncle's horse-drawn carriage.

His health greatly improved during his first years in Ellendale, so he matriculated at the State Normal and Industrial School. After completing a two year course in business, he became a member of the business staff. Shortly, however, he enrolled at the Gregg School in Chicago to further his business education. In 1918 he returned to the business staff at N.I.

August 6, 1923, Mr. Banks married Alice Peterson, Secretary-Registrar at N.I. Mrs. Banks held that job for over 30 years, retiring just recently.

As an instructor of business at the college since 1918, Mr. Banks has become as much of an institution as N.I. itself. He has served not only the school, but the community as well. His friendliness and patience, and his continual willingness to help with individual problems is known to the thousands of students whom he has taught.

In behalf of the students and administration at N.I., and in behalf of others who have known him through the years, we dedicate this yearbook to Mr. O. A. Banks, a man who has devoted so much of his talent, energy, and spirit to our college.

A typical scene in the business office gives us only a faint idea of what is going on behind all this.

Through the business office the school buys all its supplies. The office administers the State Loans and National Defense Loans. It is also the home of the registrar and her department which takes charge of registering students for each new quarter, records transcripts and grades and also credits earned for the year.

FACULTY

Business

Courses in business are offered for both those interested in teaching, and those interested in office work.

The Department offers a one, two, and four year course, with a Bachelor of Science in Education Degree offered with the latter.

The curriculum consists of courses in Business Machines, Typing, Dictaphone, Filing, Shorthand and Accounting.

For those not interested in any specific job, it provides an intelligent relationship between business and social problems.

English and Dramatics

English & Dramatics

What are the purposes of an English Department? To many it is merely the department that teaches "that horrible stuff" called grammar. However, it does more than teach us proper usage of the English language. It stimulates interest in literary art, raises the individual's level of reading and writing, stimulates clear thinking and good judgment, instills a knowledge and appreciation of cultural growth of present and past civilizations, and it also prepares students for teaching English.

The Dramatics Department, which has been reorganized this year, gives students experience as actors, teaches fundamentals in play production and helps students to learn to co-operate with others.

Language

German has been offered for the past two years as a language course. The elementary class develops the essentials of grammar, pronunciation, and vocabulary.

Intermediate German continues on a more advanced scale.

Dean of Women

The Dean of Women is kept busy with her work in orientation and counseling of both girls and boys in college. She is called on for chaperoning, guidance, and for aid in development of social activities. She is also coordinator of activities during the year.

She is House Mother of Dacotah Hall and director of the dining hall.

Art and Music

Music is part of a general program given to cultivate understanding and interest in it. There are also advanced courses for those who desire to go on in the field of music.

Art

To teach us to appreciate the "finer" things in life, is one of the purposes of Art. It develops in us an esthetical sense of art and nature. Art helps students develop their creative abilities, and provides specialized education to those interested in teaching.

Elementary Education

MARGARET KABRUD
Rural Education

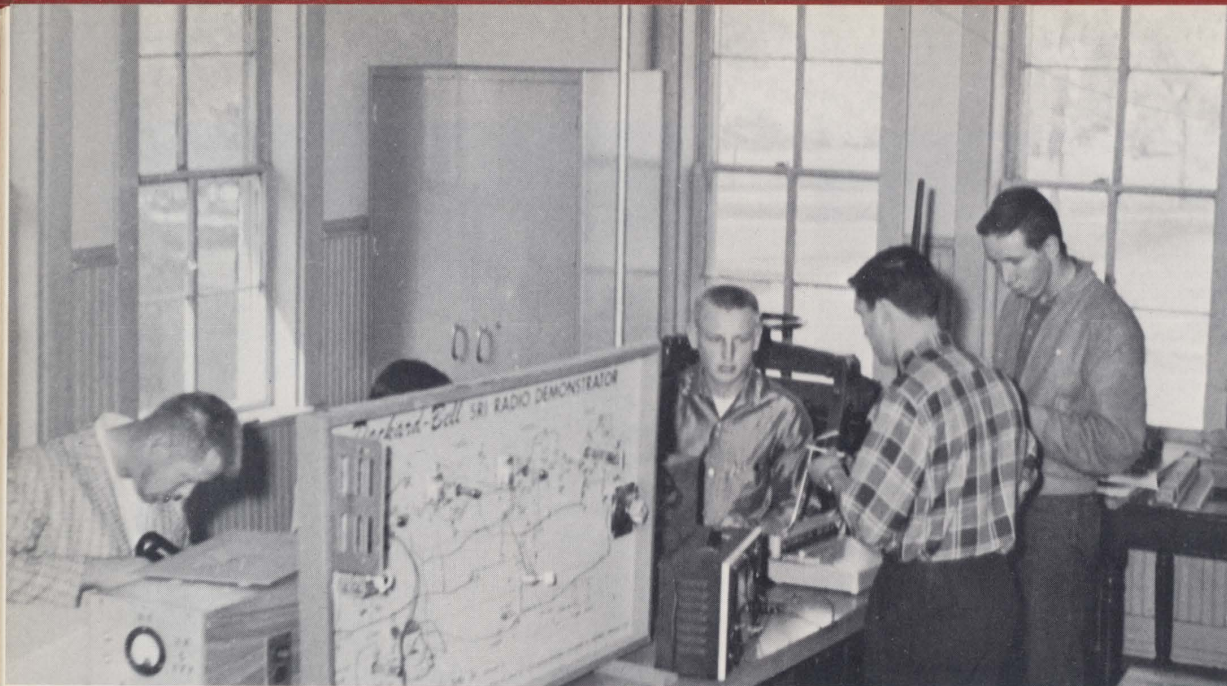

MERTON ANDRESEN
Director of Rural Education

The Elementary Education Curriculum, leading to the Bachelor of Science Degree in Education, with elementary specialization, aims to prepare the student professionally for service to the community in the public elementary schools of the nation. It is an expansion of the Standard Normal Curriculum, which has prepared teachers for the schools of North Dakota since 1907.

Some of the aims of the elementary education program are: To encourage students with desirable and effective citizenship and personality to enter the teaching profession, and to provide a background of general education for effective participation in American life.

The Education Department offers courses in general training which contribute to obtaining a Degree in English, business, physical education, science, and social science.

Since the college is located in a rural community, courses in the Education Department stress rural situations because many of the graduates find jobs in rural areas.

The four-year curriculum in Education prepares students for teaching on both elementary and secondary levels, for administrative duties, and for teaching specific subjects.

The Education Department, hand-in-hand with the Elementary Department, also gives us the Placement Bureau service.

Social Science

DR. ROBERT KRESS
History & Economics

This department offers a student a good background in history, geography, political science, and sociology. It prepares the student for teaching social studies, and offers a preparatory course for advanced professional or vocational studies. An additional aim of the department is to stimulate student's interest and curiosity in social science, and provide a general education.

Library

Glenn Weiand explaining a display

The library is the center of the school. It is a place for study, research, informing oneself on world affairs, or for reading for recreation. The college has been cited by the North Dakota Survey Team of Higher Education as having done more than any other college in North Dakota to encourage student reading, and having made the library even more central both physically and educationally.

Every year the library staff has a special night called "Open House" in which it invites town people as well as college students to visit the library to get acquainted with the material the library has to lend out.

Mathematics

Even an elementary math course is good for developing logical thinking and comprehension of number relationships.

Since our nation has become so advanced through technological development, a math course is helpful in understanding these developments.

Band Tag Day Raises $473

Receipts from Band Tag Day, April 15, amounted to $473, which will be used to pay for four complete band uniforms for the next year.

Because the enrollment of students had exceeded the number of uniforms, the tag day was held to raise money for the new uniforms. Band members and their parents were stationed at the corners of city streets.

"Receipts from the tag day will most likely pay for uniforms and coats," said Mr. J. H. Sanger.

Student Council

Curt Newmann, Harvey Fode, Pat Kroll, Mrs. Nellie Stahlecker, Clyde Sayler, Adviser; Dr. Opem.

Student representation is the responsibility of the Student Council. Of the Council's five members, two are elected at large; the other three are elected from specific departments: One from the Business Department; one from the Industrial Arts Department; and one from the Elementary Department.

Some of its duties include: Conducting a freshmen orientation program, sponsoring the Spring Formal, selecting candidates for "Who's Who In American Colleges and Universities, and managing the Student Union.

Carrying out its program, the Council works for the continuance of good relations between faculty and students.

One of the most active groups on campus is the Industrial Arts Club. This group pledges itself to the promotion of social life, scholarship, leadership, and the aims and objectives of industrial education. Each year the club organizes the industrial arts fair which is sponsored by the Ford Foundation.

Delta Alpha Pi

Anthony Eckroth, Delbert Gustin, Arlan Tietal, Bill Ashmore, Pat Kroll, Donald Kosel, Milo Sulentic.

Striving to improve social relationships, Delta Alpha Pi, men's Fraternity, has been acknowledged by the faculty and Social Life Committee to be the mainstay in promoting desirable activities on campus. This small, but influential group is continually displaying loyalty and respect to the school, as well as to students.

Highlights of the year are: The annual ping-pong tournament, the annual amateur talent contest, and the annual masquerade party.
